Wilson asks tabling of sewer, city office measures

Council election spawns major developments

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

A member resigned, three future members were congratulated, and a motion was presented to table two controversial ordinances until Jan. 4 at a lengthy Washington C.H. City Council meeting Wednesday.

All the developments came in the wake of Tuesday's general election in which two Council incumbents lost in bids for re-election.

Ralph Cook, a veteran of four terms on Council, resigned his position and left the meeting abruptly Wednesday night. Cook and present Council Chairman Mrs. Bertha McCullough finished fifth and sixth in Tuesday's balloting for four Council seats.

Present Council member Billie Wilson along with Jack Balahtsis, Charles Pensyl, and Nelson McCann were the top vote-getters Tuesday. All four attended Wednesday's meeting. They were congratulated by Council members and wished "good luck" during their four-year terms which will begin in January.

Despite the well-wishing, a rift between Council proponents and opponents of the multi-million dollar sewer project and the renovation of a new city building is expected to widen.

During the past four years, only Wilson has voiced opposition to both projects. However, two of the three new members to be seated in January were part of a four-candidate coalition which involved Wilson.

Wilson, Pensyl, McCann and Jerry Sparks were backed by the Committee for Economy in Government during the recent election. The committee's platform promised that no more city ordinances opposed by a majority of the citizens would be passed. All but Sparks were elected Tuesday.

Ordinances pertaining to both the sewer project and the new city building appeared on Wednesday's Council agenda. Before votes were cast on the two measures, Wilson made a motion to table the ordinances until the "new Council" can analyse the situation.

Wilson's motion died for a lack of a second, but solicited a warning from Mrs. McCullough.

She said that the city was committed to the sewer project and warned that legal action could be taken against the city if certain ordinances were not passed. She asked city law director Gary Smith to expand on the matter.

Smith stated that the city accepted a federal grant for the sewer improvement project and the city was obligated to follow through with plans. He added that legal action could result if the city does not live up to the terms of the grant.

A $9 million Environmental Protection Agency grant for the construction of sewer lines in the city was accepted by Council in August.

After the ramifications of not passing ordinances pertaining to the sewer project were given, a vote was taken on a measure authorizing City Manager George Shapter to enter into agreements with the C.F. Bird and R.J. Bull, Ltd., for engineering services during the installation of sewer lines.

The vote was 5-1 in favor of the ordinance which was placed on third reading and passed as an emergency. Wilson cast the lone "no" vote.

Since the ordinance was passed as an emergency, Shapter can immediately sign contracts with the city's consulting engineering firm.

The ordinance calls for four agreements. One is for basic engineering services during the sewer line installation and another would provide for construction inspection of the massive project.

Agreements to provide maps of the underground sewer lines and the preparation of easements for construction on private property were also covered in the ordinance.

The other ordinance which Wilson requested be delayed until Jan. 4 when the new Council meets was placed on second reading and declared an emergency. Again, Wilson was the only member to oppose the measure.

That ordinance would authorize Shapter to sign construction contracts for the renovation of the new city building, located at 215 E. Market St.

That renovation work will cost approximately $176,000. It is expected to be approved at the next Council meeting and then construction work can begin.

The city offices will be located in the former Kirk's Auto Parts store which was purchased this summer for $50,000. A less controversial ordinance defining city street light regulations was also passed by Council Wednesday.

It was placed on third and final reading by a unanimous vote.

However, a motion was made to pass the ordinance as an emergency and Wilson voted no. He said he saw no need to pass the ordinance as an emergency, which would place the law in effect immediately instead of waiting the required 30-day period for laws to become effective.

The ordinance states rules and regulations for the placement of street lights and provides for the use of ornamental street lights in city neighborhoods and subdivisions.

An ordinance revising city sewer billing procedures was placed on second reading Wednesday by a unanimous vote. It would provide for duplicate sewer bills to be sent to property owners as well as tenants.

Leaves meeting abruptly

Cook resigns post in wake of defeat

A veteran of 16 years on Washington C.H. City Council submitted his resignation Wednesday night.

Ralph L. Cook, 1229 High St., made the surprise announcement shortly after Council convened in regular session Wednesday at the Carnegie Public Library.

He handed a letter to Council Chairman Mrs. Bertha McCullough and stated he was relinquishing his seat on the city's governing body.

The resignation came in the wake of Tuesday's general election which left Cook and Mrs. McCullough defeated in their bids for re-election. The 48-year-old Cook was seeking a fifth consecutive four-year term Tuesday, but lacked 98 votes in his re-election attempts.

Cook, who owns and operates the Cook Home Improvement Co. in Washington C.H., said he felt he should step down and give one of the newly elected Council members a chance to get an early start on a four-year term.

He recommended that Jack Balahtsis, 238 Kathryn Court, be appointed to fill the remaining seven weeks of his term, adding that Balahtsis was Tuesday's top vote getter, who was not presently on Council.

He then handed Balahtsis, who was among 30 persons present at the meeting, his Council material for the upcoming session and left the meeting room.

Mrs. McCullough asked the remaining Council members if they wished to act on the resignation. No one spoke and the resignation was not accepted at last night's meeting.

Blamed for 2 deaths

Howling blizzard cripples Midwest

By The Associated Press

A howling blizzard is creeping across the upper Midwest today, after dumping up to 10 inches of snow, stranding hundreds of motorists and closing stores, industries and schools.

Two deaths were blamed on the storm in Minnesota.

The Minneapolis-St. Paul area braced for high winds and up to three inches of snow by tonight, and travelers' warnings and snow predictions were posted in Minnesota, Iowa and northwest Wisconsin.

The National Weather Service said the blizzard — the worst on record for this time of year — was moving in a north-northeast direction at about 10 mph. The low pressure area fed by cold Canadian air spun a cold front slicing the nation from Minnesota to Louisiana.

John Graf, meteorologist at the weather service office in Minneapolis, said "very critical" weather conditions would continue through today because of the "sluggish" system.

Blizzard warnings posted Wednesday remained in effect today in the northwestern portions of the state. Snowfall had tapered off, but gusty winds blew drifts up to six feet deep.

Officials said the body of an unidentified elderly man was found Wednesday in snow in the Fergus Falls area, about 25 east of the North Dakota border.

To the north, in Thief River Falls, Mike Muzzy, 23, was reported crushed by snow-removing equipment on Wednesday.

Most of the storm's punch — with winds gusting to 65 mph — was absorbed Wednesday by western Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa and the Dakotas.

Winds knocked down the top 600 feet of the 700-foot transmitting tower of KRSW, the FM station of Southwestern Minnesota Public Radio, south of Chandler.

The Minnesota National Guard set up emergency shelters Wednesday and looked for people stranded in the hardest-hit areas of the state.

Fifty cars were stuck in deep snow along Interstate 94 near Fergus Falls. The sheriff's office said two turkey trucks were among vehicles stranded on state Highway 210 and many of the birds froze to death.

Hotels and motels were crowded Wednesday night.

"We've got strangers ... sharing rooms," said Roger Dohrmann, manager of the Castaway Hotel and Restaurant in Detroit Lakes, Minn.

A motel owner in Alexandria, Minn., reported turning away at least two dozen people. Guardsmen then turned an armory into a dormitory for weather refugees.

Gov. Robert Ray mobilized Iowa's National Guard to help pluck 150 to 200 people stranded along a 20-mile stretch of highway south of Sioux City. But before the guardsmen arrived, local residents organized a make-shift platoon of snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles and began rescue work.

"We've got a genuine February blizzard in November," said Lyon County Sheriff Craig Vinson. Gusts whipped up to 65 mph.

In South Dakota, a convoy of four-wheel-drive vehicles took four hours to crawl 38 blizzard-swept miles between Salem and Sioux Falls to take Daniel Thorne, 22, of St. Paul, Minn., to a hospital after his legs were crushed in a highway accident.

A South Dakota Highway Patrol trooper, who helped in the convoy, said: "When one of us got stuck, the others helped him out and that's the way we made it."

A school bus carrying the Grand Forks (N.D.) High School girls' basketball team to a game in Jamestown, about 120 miles to the southwest, was pulled from the shoulder of a road after it had been stalled for about two hours.

After the bus was returned to the snow-packed highway, Coach Pat Sullivan said, "It took us 6½ hours to travel 78 miles."

ONE successful Washington C.H. City Council candidate has kept a "campaign promise," it was reported today.

Nelson McCann, who was elected to one of four vacant seats on City Council by local voters on Tuesday, had apparently "promised" a McLean Street resident that he would erect a street light in front of the man's home if he won election.

Well, the story goes that McCann waited until after dark Wednesday night and fulfilled his promise by erecting the street light on McLean Street.

The only trouble is that the street light was a bit primitive, consisting only of a wooden stake with a flashlight attached.

Zoning change okayed for elderly housing

Senior citizens applaud Council for approving legislation

Washington C.H. City Council passed an ordinance Wednesday and received a round of applause from a group of local senior citizens.

The ordinance, which was passed with the suspension of rules placing it into law immediately, granted a required zoning change for land off Dayton Avenue which will be the site of a "senior citizens village."

A public hearing on the zoning change was held during Wednesday night's Council meeting. A number of local senior citizens attended the hearing and requested the zoning change be made immediately.

Clarence Cooper, chairman of the Fayette County Commission on Aging, asked Council not to add further delay to the project which has already been held up by governmental red tape.

Plans for the senior citizen housing were presented to Council last spring when a request was made to annex a 23-acre tract of land to the city. The next step in the project was completed Wednesday with the passage of the zoning ordinance.

The "village" would consist of 50 apartments for local senior citizens and is partially funded through a government loan. Because it is a partially funded by the government, the rent of the apartments would depend on a person's income and range from a low of $40 a month to a high of $125 a month, according to the project's architects.

The land on which the village is being built is owned by Frank Sollars of 2463 Bunker Hill-Glendale Road.

Construction on the project will begin as soon as a loan with the Farmer's Home Administration is approved.

Two Council members were hesitant to suspend the rules and pass the zoning ordinance Monday, because they felt the zoning which was approved by the City Planning Commission in September could have been presented to Council at an earlier date.

The two, Billie Wilson and John Morris, agreed to the rules suspension because of what they called, an urgent need for the senior citizen housing.

Cooper told Council that housing was a major concern of local senior citizens. He stated that the second largest number of phone calls to Help Anonymous in Fayette County concerned senior citizen housing.

Council race which had 11 candidates vying for four seats. Incumbent Billie Wilson received the highest total of votes followed by Balahsits. Charles Pensyl finished third in the balloting with 1,523 votes and Nelson McCann secured the fourth seat with 1,400 votes.

Cook received a total of 1,302 votes.

Near the end of Wednesday's meeting, nearly every Council member said they regretted Cook's decision to resign.

"He has offered his resignation. Possibly, he would change his mind," Council member Richard Kimmet said.

"Maybe we don't understand all the reasons why he resigned, but we'll miss him," Joseph O'Brien said.

Cincy fights fuel billing

CINCINNATI (AP) — The City of Cincinnati has joined the fight against the backbilling practices of Cincinnati Gas & Electric.

Branding the logic behind backbilling as "ridiculous," Assistant City Solicitor Pete Heile wants the practice limited to 60 days.

Heile said the city was allowed to enter the controversy as an intervenor.

The uproar surfaced last winter when a number of customers received bills — some in excess of $1,000 — when the utility discovered a number of meters allegedly gave inaccurate readings over a period of several years.

An attorney representing a consumers group Wednesday labeled CG&E's attempt to collect on malfunctioning meters as "unreasonable, unlawful and unconscionable."

After heavy Israeli air attack

Border war death toll rises

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese and Palestinian searchers dug deeper today into the rubble left by raiding Israeli warplanes as the Lebanese government announced the death toll from the heavy air attack Wednesday had passed the 100 mark.

The governor's office in Sidon, the provincial capital of South Lebanon, also reported 150 wounded in the bombing and strafing of villages and Palestinian refugee camps in southwest Lebanon.

Officials said at least 80 per cent of the casualties were civilians and most of them were Lebanese.

The Lebanese government charged that the attack was "overt aggression" and said it would bring it to the attention of the U.N. Security Council.

After train derails

Poison vapors blamed in death of Floridian

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Brisk winds pushed a cloud of poisonous ammonia gas from a freight train derailment out over the Gulf of Mexico today, after the vapors killed one man and forced evacuation of at least 1,000 people from their homes.

The evacuation was ordered Wednesday night as the gas spread through residential sections here and in neighboring Santa Rosa County. By dawn police in Pensacola, in Florida's panhandle, reported the toxic cloud over Escambia Bay on the Gulf.

Thirty persons were treated for inhalation told him of running across his front lawn to escape the cloud of gas.

"He said a little dog came around the corner of the house and ran across the yard to catch him," said Rudd. "He said the dog just kind of folded up and that's all there was."

City and county officials refused to allow the railroad to move the derailed train until investigators from the federal Railroad Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board could find the cause.

John Frenkel, a Pensacola councilman called for a ban on rail traffic through the area until L&N proves its tracks are safe. There are several large chemical plants in the Pensacola area, and shipment of dangerous chemicals is common.

E. Leo Koester, a vice president with L&N, said the railroad recently spent $1 million in track improvements in the area. He said a safety inspector had checked the area of the derailment a week ago.

Administrator Joe Mooney. "I don't know what it takes to get their attention."

Firefighters spent the night spraying water on a ruptured 33,000 gallon tank car a few yards away from the Thorshov home. Two other tank cars developed smaller leaks after eight cars of the 35-car train derailed, Pensacola police reported.

"The gas comes on very quickly and basically chokes you to death," said hospital spokesman Robert Rudd.

Rudd said one of the persons treated for inhalation told him of running across his front lawn to escape the cloud of gas.

"He said a little dog came around the corner of the house and ran across the yard to catch him," said Rudd. "He said the dog just kind of folded up and that's all there was."

Rhodes responds to defeat of three state amendments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio voters sent government officials an anti-bureaucracy message in the Tuesday election, Gov. James A. Rhodes said today.

"I think what the electorate wants to do is to be left alone," Rhodes said in a news conference. "I think basically they think there is too much government, too many laws and too much regulation."

The purpose of the news conference was to announce the opening of a new J.C. Penney department store in Columbus. David F. Miller, northeast regional vice president for Penney's, announced an expansion plan for Ohio that would eventually result in 20 new stores.

Plans are incomplete on sites for all the stores, Miller said.

In questioning after the retail announcement, Rhodes avoided specifics when addressing himself to repeal of election day registration and the defeat of three other proposed constitutional amendments on Tuesday.

"A lot of people think if the president, the governor and Congress would take a two-year vacation, most of these things would write themselves," he said.

The governor said new plans would have to be formulated to aid the housing industry in the state and to stimulate capital improvements, as a result of the defeats of Issues 3 and 4.

Rhodes supported Issue 3 that would have allowed the state to make loans for low and middle income housing, but took no position on Issue 4 to lift the state's limit on bonded debt.

"We are at a standstill (on capital improvements) and we'll have to regroup and get another plan," Rhodes said.

The governor declined to mention specifics on what type of plan should be implemented, but, obviously recalling the defeat of his multibillion dollar bond package on the ballot two years ago, he vowed "they'll be no bond issues presented by me."

Rhodes also said the school finance problem should be resolved by the General Assembly.

"I think the whole school problem lies in the hands of the General Assembly and we're going to cooperate," he said.

Diet book author supports claims on liquid proteins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The doctor whose book popularized the liquid protein "last chance" diet says his method is still the only effective treatment for obesity, despite government claims that it played a part in the deaths of 10 women.

Dr. Robert Linn, the 43-year-old osteopath whose diet book has sold two million copies, said Wednesday he agrees with the Food and Drug Administration that people who embark on his diet should be watched closely by physicians for potentially dangerous complications.

But he said the health risks of obesity outweigh the dangers of the so-called "protein-sparring fast" if it is properly monitored.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy told a news conference Wednesday that government health authorities have "every reason to believe that the liquid protein diet was at least a contributing factor or a cause" in the sudden heart attack deaths of 10 women under age 45.

"We expect to find others," he said. "We only have what we're afraid may be the tip of the iceberg."

Kennedy urged weight-conscious consumers not to go on the liquid protein diet without close supervision by a doctor skilled in its use.

And those now on it, he said, should "get themselves into the hands of a physician" who can spot signs of danger.

Kennedy said warning labels will soon be required on liquid protein bottles. If evidence against the substance continues to mount, he said, "We will use every regulatory tool at hand to get it off the market."

After the news conference, Linn said in a statement issued by his office that he has had no deaths in his own practice, "and further, I understand that when using this obesity treatment properly, several hundred doctors treating several thousand patients have had no deaths."

He also maintained that no other effective treatment exists for the clinically obese, which he called a serious medical problem for one out of every four Americans and "a major risk factor in a number of life-threatening diseases."

He said the FDA's public warning should have a positive benefit, saying the main problem appears to be "with patients monitored minimally by physicians."

The Syrian government radio accused the Israelis of a "deliberate attempt to further obstruct American peacemaking efforts in the Middle East."

Despite Israel's claim that its air force attacked only Palestinian military targets, foreign correspondents who toured devastated villages and a refugee camp found no evidence of guerrilla positions.

"Why have they killed our innocent babies? The wrath of God on the cursed Israeli pilots!" said a Palestinian woman weeping for nine dead children in the infirmary at the Burj el Shimal refugee camp.

Foreign reporters visited the camp and the ruins of nearby Azzieh, six miles north of the border. They found all 30 houses in the village had been demolished, and 50 huts in the camp had been destroyed.

One resident of the camp, Aly Yacoub, said his wife and daughter had been killed when bombs hit their house.

The nearby village of Hanieh also was completely destroyed. Survivors said bodies were still buried in the rubble.

Bomb craters 10 yards wide pock the area, over which survivors said at least a dozen Israeli planes made repeated runs.

"The gates of hell opened and it was as if the fire started to pour down on this place," said 16-year-old Jebal Shebil. "It seemed to be raining fire."

"After a while nothing was left. It was suddenly very quiet, and people started coming out of shelters looking for their relatives and children in the ruins."

The Israeli military command said the raid, the first admitted by Israel in nearly two years, was ordered because the Palestinians in the Tyre area of southwest Lebanon fired at least 18 rockets over a period of four hours Tuesday into the Israeli coastal town of Nahariya.

Only one Israeli, a 35-year-old mother of two children, was reportedly killed by the rockets Tuesday. But Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, the Israeli chief of staff, said the four-hour span of the attack and the number of rockets fired indicated a change of policy by the guerrillas.

Gur said the retaliatory attack served notice that Israel would not tolerate a resumption of guerrilla activity in southern Lebanon, from which the Palestinians raided into Israel before the guerrillas went north to fight in the Lebanese civil war.

Israeli Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zippori, in Nahariya for the funeral of the woman, said the guerrillas "will pay the full price for their actions" and vowed "never to give the murderers any rest."

The Palestinians and the Israelis had been trading artillery and rocket fire across the border since Saturday. Two Israelis and three Lebanese were reportedly killed during the weekend, and more than 15 Lebanese and Palestinians were reportedly killed on Tuesday.

Nixon's witch finder is subject of Capitol Hill probe

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Back in the bad old days of Watergate, a briefcase-packing, circuit-riding prosecutor traveled around the country hunting subversives. He was Guy Goodwin, who hurried from place to place indicting people for their political beliefs. We called him Richard Nixon's witch finder.

Justice Department sources say he supervised about 100 grand jury investigations in 36 states. He returned more than 400 indictments. There was one trouble; few of the indictments stuck. The rare convictions were often for minor offenses, having nothing to do with the subversive activities Goodwin was investigating. Goodwin sought contempt and perjury indictments when he couldn't make a better case.

Now the witch finder himself is under investigation. Charges have been brought against him behind closed doors on Capitol Hill. The most devastating testimony has come from a former Justice Department colleague and ex-assistant U.S. attorney for Virginia, Rodney Sager.

The testimony was taken in the strictest secrecy by a House Judiciary subcommittee. Sager cited abuse after abuse by the hit-and-run Goodwin. "His prosecutions were left to others," said Sager. "He got his indictments and disappeared."

Normally, "95 percent of all indictments end in convictions," Sager reported. But Goodwin seemed unable to distinguish between violent, bomb-throwing revolutionaries and peaceful, anti-war activists. No more than 25 percent of those Goodwin indicted were ever convicted, Sager charged.

This "indicates without any question," he said, "that individuals were indicted without the least scintilla of evidence." Innocent people can be "ruined," he warned, by careless indictments. "If I were indicted and the cast thrown out tomorrow," he said, "the stigma that would attach to what happened to me would never be erased in my community."

Yet despite Goodwin's "numerous abuses of the system," Sager declared, "he remains with impunity on the federal payroll.... The Justice Department, which speaks of protecting witnesses, continues to protect Guy Goodwin. The question can only be asked of the well-meaning representatives from the Justice Department — why?"

Goodwin is an improbable witch finder, an impeccable, subdued, handsome man, with styled gray hair and a soft voice. Testified Sager: "Guy Goodwin is a very mild-mannered individual. He's not one of those so-called screaming, overly aggressive individuals. But he just sits there and just asks broad, sweeping questions that have no relevance whatsoever and are virtually impossible to answer."

Here are a few of the "horror" stories that Sager recalled from his personal experience with Goodwin:

—Goodwin "went so far as to subpoena the defense attorney of the primary defendant" in a Richmond, Va., case. Goodwin even "threatened to have him locked up... if he didn't show up for the grand jury." Inside the grand jury room, Goodwin demanded whether the attorney had any "wire tapping equipment." Recounted Sager: "The fellow laughed in his face.... had a few choice words for him and left the grand jury room."

—During the same investigation, Goodwin granted immunity to the wrong witness. Sager considered this to be "just comical" but also concluded it was a "grossly negligent act.... (that would) suggest professional incompetence."

—When Sager criticized Goodwin's performance, the witch finder tried to indict him. As Sager recalled this startling development: "He said to me, 'Mr. Sager,' he says, 'you complained a little bit and I want to protect you.' I said, 'Protect me? What do you mean protect me?' He said, 'Well, I want to advise you of your rights.' I said, 'Man, you've got to be crazy.'"

Nevertheless, Goodwin went ahead with an investigation of Sager and actually hauled him before a grand jury. Sager recalled that Goodwin's questions "were so ridiculous that it would defy my imagination and logic as a prosecutor with six years experience." The grand jury found no misconduct by Sager. He responded by filing charges against Goodwin, but these were ignored by his superior, then-Assistant Attorney General Richard Thornburgh. So Sager quit in disgust. "I'm disappointed and disillusioned," he said.

After listening to the secret testimony, Rep. Harold Sawyer, R-Mich., snorted: "If I were voting here based on what I heard, I certainly would vote to hand down an indictment on Goodwin. You certainly sold me on that."

Other eminent authorities have also condemned the witch finder. Whitney North Seymour, the U.S. attorney in New York City, said Goodwin had "little apparent regard for the rights of witnesses." Prof. Arthur Kinoy, a famed constitutional lawyer who has reviewed Goodwin's record, called him "one of the most serious examples of repression." Some of Goodwin's colleagues referred to him as "the grand inquisitor."

Goodwin is now keeping in the shadows, but he is still keeping an eye out for witches in the Justice Department's Internal Security Section.

Footnote: Goodwin refused to take our calls for his comment.

Child-slayer found after jail escape

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Child-slayer Margo Davies and another convicted murderer were captured this morning about 12 hours after they escaped from the Ohio Reformatory for Women, authorities said.

Mrs. Davies and Mary Ashford, 27, of South Zanesville were picked up two miles from the reformatory about 8:45 a.m. by Ohio Highway Patrolmen, Union County deputies and reformatory personnel.

No other details were immediately available.

The 21-year-old Mrs. Davies, of Worthington, who was serving three life terms for killing her three children, and Miss Ashford, 27, of South Zanesville, convicted of a murder in Perry County, walked away from the medium security prison Wednesday night, authorities said.

Corrections department spokesman George Lehner said the two inmates disappeared after they had gone to the commissary to purchase a few items. He estimated that eight minutes had elapsed before their absence was discovered.

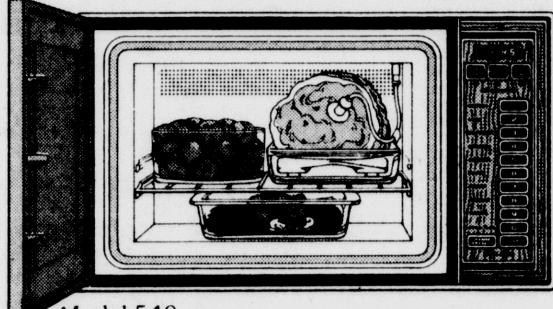

There is no fence surrounding the reformatory. About 50 law enforcement officers were taking part in the search.

Action on hijacking

Two good things have happened with regard to curbs on the hijacking of aircraft. The United Nations General Assembly, overcoming its long paralysis on this question, has unanimously approved a strong resolution. The United States has gone a bit further on its own, threatening to suspend U.S. operating rights for airlines or countries which do not conform to anti-hijacking policies.

Yet neither the action threatened by Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams nor the General Assembly resolution goes as far as we would like in response to terrorist air piracy. Although the situation is improved, a vitally important element is still lacking. That element is unequivocal assurance that tough sanctions will be imposed on non-cooperating nations or airlines.

The consensus resolution adopted by the General Assembly does, it is true, put strong pressure on the few countries which have granted asylum to hijackers and thus thwarted the legal machinery of trial and punishment. Its strictures against hijacking, and its call upon all nations to take "all necessary steps" to put a stop to such crimes, are welcome.

How much better it would be, though, if the assembled nations were to say flatly to those that have been mavericks in this regard: Comply, or face the consequences. This is the implication of Adams' remarks in behalf of the United States that "we are prepared to exercise statutory powers to suspend air service to those nations which provide a safe haven to hijackers, or fly into those countries." Washington should now consider putting this in the form of an ultimatum, and at an appropriate time urging the General Assembly to follow suit. There has been too much temporizing with terrorists who risk the lives of innocent airlines passengers to carry out their criminal purposes.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

Minimum wage as sectional weapon

Everything the Congress does proclaims its belief that there will be no end to inflation. When it raises the minimum wage on an escalating scale to $3.35 by January 1, 1981, it amounts to an admission that businesses will have to raise their prices to accommodate the new rates. When it proposes saving the Social Security system's solvency by jacking up the maximum employee payment from $965 per year, as of now, to $2,854 by 1986, a 300 per cent jump, it admits that money will be worth considerably less within a decade.

The whole performance makes a mockery of President Jimmy Carter's promise to balance the budget by 1981. As for the president's own economics, he apparently believes that increases in the minimum wage and in Social Security transfer payments will augment the purchasing power of the nation. But the bigger wage and Social Security checks will command more goods only until business can make its adjustments.

A manufacturer of sporting rifles put it to me this way: "Yes, I'll pay the new wage. But we'll have to increase the price of the rifle to protect our profit margin. If this results in fewer guns being sold, we'll have to cut back on manufacturing. The fact that government says a marginal worker is worth more doesn't add anything to his productivity."

The very least the increase in the basic minimum wage will mean that industries, far from hiring any new help, will try to get along with what they have.

Both Carter and Congress had plenty of warnings that they were about to hurt future productivity by forcing thousands of U.S. employers to hand out pay raises that will cost billions. Two black economists, Thomas Sowell of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University and Walter Williams of Temple University, had presented irrefutable evidence that the proposal to increase and index the minimum wage must substantially add to youth and black minority unemployment.

Young people are obviously unskilled and without experience. Blacks, regardless of age, have been, in Williams' words, "burdened by poor schooling, racial discrimination and other socio-economic factors leading to lower skill levels."

Sowell's opinions have been set forth in a Hoover Institution Press booklet, "Minimum Wage Escalation." "The sad fact," says Sowell, "is that low-wage workers are not so much underpaid as underskilled. There is no easy way around this problem without pricing them out of a job. Low-wage workers are not changed by calling them higher-wage workers, any more than students are improved by calling them B students instead of C students."

Speaking to the same subject, economist Henry Hazlitt says the old minimum-wage law has thrown some 40 per cent of black teenagers into unemployment. "Mr. Carter's remedy," says Hazlitt, "is to propose a raise in the minimum wage still higher. . . . Then, having destroyed more private jobs, Mr. Carter will ask the taxpayers to pay for still bigger government make-work schemes."

Dr. Ron Paul, who is Secretary of Labor in the so-called Shadow Cabinet set up by Howard Phillips' grassroots Conservative Caucus, puts his finger on the real reason why Big Labor has insisted on a high minimum wage with no exceptions for unskilled teenagers, black and white. The minimum wage law is, in Paul's words, "the weapon used by high-wage workers in the North against low-wage workers in the South. They try to prevent jobs from heading south to the states that still have right-to-work laws and a more favorable tax climate for business."

In other words, the minimum wage law is sectional legislation, aimed at Jimmy Carter's own Southland. Southerners will surely not be stupid enough to vote twice for one of their own who has let them down.

New committee eyes state prisons, jails

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new committee of state senators and representatives soon will begin making unannounced visits to Ohio's correctional institutions — not just state prisons, but local and county jails as well.

Authority for the visits is in a new state law which took effect Wednesday. It provides that any institution must open its doors at any time, without prior notice, to the committee.

Rep. C.J. McLin Jr., D-Dayton, sponsored the legislation which he said not only can lead to better living conditions in penal institutions, but also can help the legislature evaluate and try to improve rehabilitation programs.

The idea for institutional visits to the correctional institutions isn't new, but in the past they have been sporadic at best by a public improvements inspection committee which also has tried to keep check on mental institutions, state universities, and other state-assisted public facilities.

McLin said he wanted the legislature to establish a separate Correctional Institution Inspection Committee which can work with the 10-member inspections committee, headed by Rep. William E. Hinig, D-New Philadelphia, perhaps relieving it of at least some of its correctional inspections.

Under the new law, there will be an eight-member committee consisting of four members of each chamber, with not more than two from each house belonging to the same political party. Members will get actual expenses, but no salary increments for their added duties.

McLin's measure requires that Senate and House members must be named by the respective leaders within the next two weeks. They will elect a chairman from their own ranks, with the chairman required to get at least five of the eight votes.

McLin, who reportedly is in line to head the new panel, included city and county facilities in his legislation, saying the state has a responsibility to oversee local jail operations but in the past has failed to do so.

Try house-swapping

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Tired of the traditional vacation at a resort or hotel? Looking for a place to stay that's big enough to hold the whole family without breaking the budget? Try house-swapping.

You can get a rent-free holiday by temporarily trading your home with someone in another part of the country or world. It is time to start planning now, however, if you're interested in a swap next summer.

The advantages of house-swapping are that you have no hotel bill, you can cut down on restaurant costs by cooking your own meals and you may have a car included in the exchange. You also can learn what it's like to live in a community instead of getting only a tourist's-eye view.

There are disadvantages, too, however. With a few exceptions, maid service is not included in the swaps. You may be nervous about the idea of leaving your own possessions with strangers. The house you select may not be exactly what you had in mind. And the exchange services which put would-be house-swappers in touch with each other offer no guarantees of satisfaction.

There are a number of houseswapping plans available, but they all operate in the same basic method. An interested individual who wants to trade his or her home pays a fee to have it listed in a directory published by an exchange service. The listing usually includes a basic description of the house or apartment, the location and the time it will be available for swapping. Some services also include people who want to rent, rather than trade their homes.

Copies of the directory are mailed to everyone who has listed a house. You also may subscribe to the directory without listing your own residence. Either way, it is up to you to make contact with the owner of a listing that interests you and to work out the details.

Fees for the service generally range from $10 to $25, depending on whether you want to list your house or just receive the directory.

Most exchange services publish two lists—one around the beginning of the year and a second, auxiliary list in the early spring.

Ben Kieran of Inquiline, a Katonah, N.Y., house-swapping service founded in 1975, said Nov. 15 is the deadline for listing a home in the agency's main directory; March 15 is the deadline for the auxiliary publication. Kieran said the service expects to have about 500 listings this year—60 per cent in the United States and 40 per cent overseas.

The Vacation Exchange Club Inc. of New York City, which was founded in 1960 and claims to be the nation's oldest houseswapping service, expects to have a total of 3,000 listings in its upcoming directories.

A spokeswoman for the club said they have had few problems, but if there is a serious complaint—about owner or occupier—the club will drop the individual from future listings.

One way to minimize the chance of trouble is to exchange references, from a bank or an employer, for example, or from previous swappers.

The address of the Vacation Exchange Club Inc. is 350 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10013. Inquiline is at Box 208, Katonah, N.Y., 10536.

MR. and MRS. DAVID BRACKENS

Miss Anderson, Mr. Brackens now reside in Alexandria, Va.

Arrangements of live beige and cinnamon chrysanthemums, gladioli and carnations graced the altar of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church, Oct. 15, for the marriage of Miss Lyn Anderson and David Brackens. Candleabra entwined with emerald greens, California ivy, baby's breath, and fall rainbow colored satin bows accented the background. Aisle candles with leatherleaf, California ivy and treated baby's breath marked the pews. The windows of the church also had candles with greenery and baby's breath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Anderson of 12080 Cook-Yankee Road, Mount Sterling. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brackens of Alexandria, Va.

The Rev. Harold Messmer performed the candlelight ceremony.

Mrs. Dorothy Huff, organist, John Schlichter, vocalist, and Mrs. Cinda Stinson, accompanist, presented wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, Lyn wore a gown of ivory chiffon. Alencon lace covered the scoop neckline and high rise bodice. The beautiful chiffon petal sleeves had lettuce edging, and dainty organdy flower applied motifs accented the lace bodice. The double circular skirt fell into a graceful chapel train, and her picture hat was of Alencon lace and chiffon. She wore matched cultured pearls and earrings, which belonged to her grandmother. She carried an arrangement of silk roses and dried and treated cinnamon colored baby's breath with ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Jeanette Crable of Ashville, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a cinnamon knit gown with chiffon overlay and spaghetti straps, with silk flowers headpiece. The bridesmaids, Roxann Anderson of Williamsport, Joellyn Anderson of Mount Sterling, Phyllis Wilson of Mount Sterling, and Barbara Cooper of Columbus, wore gowns like that of the matron of honor. Each carried a fireside basket with beige and ivory silk roses and fall dried flowers. They wore silk flowers in their hair.

Mrs. Anderson chose for her daughter's marriage a chocolate brown knit dress with V-neckline, empire styled bodice and long tapered sleeves. She wore a shoulder corsage of beige roses with brown trim. The groom's mother wore a sleeveless green knit dress with U-neckline and chiffon overlay. She, too, wore a shoulder corsage of beige roses.

Rick Cottrell New Holland served as best man. Steve and Mike Brackens, brothers of the groom, Brent Sands of Indiana, and Greg McKinley of Mount Sterling, seated the wedding guests.

Hostesses for the reception which followed in the church annex were Mrs. Freida King, Mrs. Anne Dorn, Mrs. Ella May Belt and Mrs. Esther

Women's Day of Prayer held at Sugar Creek Church

The 30th annual Baptist Women's Day of Prayer was held Monday evening in the Sugar Creek Baptist Church. The first Day of Prayer was observed in 1948, when the call to Baptist Women went out from a joint meeting in London of the nine Baptist unions of Europe together with some of the sisters from the Baptist conventions of the United States. At that time those gathered together were conscious of the great need for material and spiritual assistance to the Baptists on the continents terribly devastated by war. Out of hours of prayer and under a dynamic awareness of God's will at that crucial moment in the life of the Baptist churches of Europe, the Day of Prayer was born.

This year the Baptist Women's Day of Prayer was launched on the theme "A Future and A Hope." Prayer concerns were world-wide. Mrs. Eugene Alkire was the program leader, and Mrs. Howard McNabb and Mrs. Robert Goodson presented a prelude of organ and piano music. Mrs. Alkire presented a challenge to the women to do as good Samaritans and to dedicate themselves as praying and caring women.

Mrs. Walter Carman, Mrs. Olan Bentley and Mrs. Jack Deweese read Scriptures concerning the future and hope of mankind. Mrs. Charles Hurt presented the devotional message, "A Letter About Our Life."

Mrs. James Vess and Miss Latonda Bailey sang "All My Hopes" accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Yerian. Mrs. Paul Brunner presented the Prayer-time with requests and concerns from around the world. Hymns sung during the program were Come Women Wide Proclaim, The Church's One Foundation, and From Greenland's Icy Mountains.

Mrs. Thomas Mossbarger gave the president's message from Marie Mathis. Mrs. Howard McNabb gave the Prayer of Thanksgiving followed by the offering. Mrs. Charles Mills and Mrs. Harold Sprague were ushers.

Following the rededication and unison prayer, Mrs. Vess and Miss Bailey sang the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Gene Donohoe, president of the Women's Missionary Society of Sugar Creek, invited all present to the social rooms of the church for refreshments, where punch and cookies were served from a lace covered table centered with a fall centerpiece.

Mrs. Walter Carman and Mrs. Harry Campbell served on the welcoming and registration committee. Mrs. Donald Breakfield, Mrs. Robert Ellars, Mrs. Harold Sprague and Mrs. Walter Henk served on the refreshments committee.

Mrs. Ed Shoemaker, Mrs. Michael Campbell, Mrs. Ivan Kelley, Mrs. Harriett Baker, Mrs. Kathryn Reno, Mrs. W. E. Cook and Miss Mabel Briggs were also registered for the Baptist Women's Day of Prayer, that was observed for a 24-hour period around the world.

Ladies of GAR plan brunch

Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic met in Staunton Fellowship Hall with Mrs. Lawrence Black and Mrs. Herbert Hoppes as hostesses. Gourds with orange ribbon and favors of bookmarks were on the tables.

In the absence of Mrs. Nona Stevens, Mrs. Donald Pemberton, junior vice president, opened the meeting in ritualistic order and Mrs. Black led the Pledge of Allegiance, American's Creed and the Articles of Faith. Mrs. Maurice Sollars had devotions.

Reports were presented by Mrs. Walter Parrett and Mrs. Ralph Child, who also made a report of visits made during the month. Members voted to give $10 to the OSSO Home. Xenia.

Some brought gifts for the Sandusky Home, also a project of the group. Those who haven't brought items, may do so by Dec. 1, and give to Mrs. Herbert Hoppes, chairman.

A brunch is planned at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 2, in Staunton Fellowship Hall, when a gift exchange and election of officers will take place. Hostesses will be Mrs. Child, chairman, Mrs. Maurice Sollars, Mrs. John Sagar Sr., Mrs. Willard Bitzer, Mrs. Nona Stevens and Mrs. Jan Hall.

Present were Mrs. Gene Carman, Mrs. Black, Mrs. Sollars, Mrs. Nellie Kennedy, Mrs. Pemberton, Mrs. Child, Mrs. Parrett, Mrs. Hoppes and Mrs. Pansy Morgan.

City Council cuffnotes

City solons find costs of preparing for winter going up

With the approach of winter, the Washington C.H. City Council is preparing for icy streets, but the remedy price for the slick streets has gone up.

Council voted to buy approximately 400 tons of salt to aid motorists on city streets this year. The price per ton was set at $22.80 setting the total bill for the city at over $9,000.

City Manager George Shapter said bids for the salt purchase were requested from five different companies, but only one submitted a bid. It came from International Salt Co. and $22.80 a ton price is $7.50 higher than last year's low bid.

The city made some inquiries as to why other companies had not submitted bids.

Shapter said some "very valid reasons" were given. These ranged from one company's mine being taken over by the federal government for oil storage and another mine had a water leak.

"We have no alternative to the $22.80 per ton price other than to use less salt this winter," Shapter told Council.

The city presently has 300 tons of salt on hand and has capacity to hold 700 tons. Approximately 700 tons of salt was used by city street crews last winter.

Council member John Morris moved that the city's salt bin be filled at the $22.80 per ton price. The motion passed by a 6-0 vote.

A number of other minor items were discussed at last night's three-hour Council session:

SAFETY SIGNS

Traffic safety signs designating school zones around the Washington Middle School will be erected within the next 10 days, according to Council member Joseph O'Brien, chairman of Council's safety committee.

O'Brien said the signs will be placed on sections of N. North, Paint and Temple streets. He added that two crosswalks that exist away from intersections on Temple Street will be removed. Students will then have to cross the street at the nearest intersection.

O'Brien and fellow safety committee member Richard Kimmel were asked to examine the safety problems around the Middle School at the last Council meeting. Council member John Morris brought the problems to Council's attention.

INSURANCE COMMITTEE

Billie Wilson, chairman of Council's newly formed insurance committee, gave a progress report on attempts to straighten out city insurance problems.

The committee was formed last month after an emergency meeting had to be called so the city could secure police liability insurance before the present policy expired.

Wilson said his committee was attempting to get a list of all city insurance policies and establish all the expiration dates of the policies.

He also said that the possibility of forming a committee of local insurance agents had been reviewed. The purpose of such a committee would be to examine the city's present policies and outline the city's insurance needs.

The matter will be discussed at the next Council session.

CHRISTMAS PARADE

Council passed a motion that would allow the Fayette County Bookmobile to be parked next to the county courthouse during the Dec. 3 Christmas parade in Washington C.H.

George Malek, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, said the bookmobile was parked next to the courthouse last year and provided a place for children to go while waiting in line to see Santa Claus, who meets children on the courthouse steps.

The motion, allowing the bookmobile to park on Main Street, also denied a request by the local manager of Pizza Hut to park a mobile concession stand downtown during the parade.

FIRE CONTRACT

Council met in a brief executive session following Wednesday's meeting to discuss a new fire contract with Union Township.

Presently, the city fire department has been providing fire protection to the township residents for $36,000 per year. Council has indicated that the fire protection price will be raised.

However, no formal action was reportedly taken during Wednesday's closed meeting.

STREET SWEEPER

Discussion continued on what to do about the city's street sweeper which broke down several months ago.

The question of whether to purchase a new street sweeper or to repair the old sweeper for approximately $7,000 won unanswered again Wednesday.

Council member James Ward pointed out that a portable street sweeper has been purchased by local merchants and given to the city. The portable sweeper will be used in the downtown area until a decision can be made on the previous sweeper.

RESIGNATION FINAL

At the last Council meeting, it was announced that William G. Ward was resigning from the city Civil Service Commission and a replacement should be considered by Council members.

Shapter announced Wednesday that the resignation is now official. However, no action was taken on seeking a replacement.

MEETING DATE CHANGED

The next City Council meeting will be held Monday, Nov. 21, in the Carnegie Public Library.

The sessions are usually held on the second and fourth Wednesday's of each week. However, the next regularly scheduled meeting was set for Nov. 23, the eve of Thanksgiving Day. To avoid any conflicts with family obligations, Council voted to change the date. It was also announced that city offices will be closed Friday in celebration of Veteran's Day. The city celebrates the holiday on the traditional Nov. 11 date.

President's statement scrutinized

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man who campaigns successfully for the presidency with a promise that "I will never lie to you" must expect to have his words scrutinized with care, even nitpicking care.

It should come as no surprise to President Carter, therefore, that a six-week-old statement he made about Richard Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has been put under reportorial microscopes.

The aim of the exercise has been to determine whether Carter is developing the kind of credibility gap that plagued some of his predecessors.

On Sept. 29, Carter told a broadcast news conference that Attorney General Griffin Bell "has not consulted with me" about bringing possible criminal charges against Helms, whose testimony before a Senate committee about CIA intervention in Chile's internal affairs had become a subject of official inquiry.

Of the several million Americans who heard, saw or read Carter's statement, perhaps a thousand had a deep interest in the case at the time.

Now, it is fair to assume, more thousands have at least some interest in the Helms matter, which became a front page news item last week when he pleaded no contest in federal court here to two criminal misdemeanor charges that he had failed to testify fully and accurately to the committee.

Part of the fresh interest has been prompted by a seeming contradiction between Carter's Sept. 29 statement and one made by Bell on Nov. 1.

To explore the matter chronologically, here is what happened:

At his September meeting with reporters, Carter was told that Bell had promised to consult with the president about Helms. Asked for his own views, Carter replied:

"He (Bell) has not consulted with me, nor given me any advice on the Helms question. I am familiar with it through reading the press...."

Last week, in an effort to defend the administration's decision to plea bargain with Helms and avoid a trial that might lead to disclosure of CIA secrets, Bell told reporters he indeed had consulted with Carter on July 25, more than two months before the president's news conference.

By Bell's account, accepted by the White House, he and Carter were joined at the July meeting by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, presidential foreign policy adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, Assistant Attorney General Benjamin J. Civiletti and one or two others.

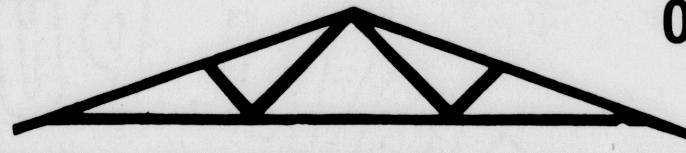

On that occasion, Bell reported, "the president authorized us to determine the feasibility and possibility" of initiating plea bargaining with Helms — a statement that also is accepted as truth by White House spokesmen.

Bell's account is, on its face, difficult to square with Carter's September pronouncement that he knew about the Helms case "through reading in the press," not to mention Carter's claim that the attorney general "has not consulted with me."

For two days last week, at regular White House press briefings, Carter's deputy press secretary Rex Granum and the top spokesman, Jody Powell, labored at reconciling what might appear irreconcilable.

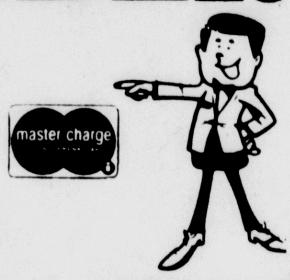

Granum first reported that Carter, at the time of the news conference, understood that the July 25 meeting had been disclosed publicly by Powell. Therefore, Granum argued, the president assumed the question addressed to him dealt with possible consultations with Bell subsequent to July 25.

Voters approve tax levy

Teachers, students return to Nelsonville-York system

NELSONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Teachers and students went back to work today in the Nelsonville-York School District 13 days after it went broke and closed.

Voters approved a new property tax Tuesday which put the system back in business but some said they endorsed it with reservations.

The district of 2,000 students, spread over 78 square miles of Ohio's Appalachia, was one of three that closed before Tuesday's election for lack of funds.

The Toledo school district 200 miles to the north also passed a new school tax and reopened classes to its 52,000 students. The West Muskingum Local District, 50 miles northeast of here, defeated a school tax. Its 2,300 students will remain out of school until after Jan. 1.

The levy approved here will add $47.25 next year to the taxes of the owner of a $30,000 house, who now pays $373.27 a year in taxes, with 66 percent of it going to education.

"I know we have to have a tax on property," said Ethel McConnell, who has five children in Nelsonville-York schools. "But there comes a time when it really strains the budget to pay taxes."

"We voted for the tax and are willing to pay it if it is to keep the children in school. But I think there should be a better way."

"I don't know what it is but I want to find out."

Joe Brooker, 17, a senior and athlete at the high school, spent his idle time encouraging adults to vote for the levy so he could return to classes.

"Some apartment renters voted for the property levy and they don't have to pay the tax," he said, "and some said they were against it because they are taxed to death."

Janie Thompson, 18, the student council president and this year's homecoming queen, said she learned a lot about taxes while putting up signs and working at school tax rallies.

"I didn't know what was going on until I got into this," she said. "This might not be the best way but it seems to be the cheapest way so far to pay for schools."

Mrs. McConnell, with three honor roll students in her house, said the property tax method for financing education leaves a lot of unanswered questions.

"I think this crisis has brought parents to realize there has to be some more permanent solution to our problem," she said. "We have to search for answers until we find a better one..."

"I don't know how this should be done but if enough parents get together we can find out how its done and maybe come to some kind of solution."

Elementary teachers Kimberly Culp, 27, and J. Gordon Sullivan, 45, said higher taxes offer no lasting solution to school financing.

New director named for cancer society

The Fayette County chapter of the American Cancer Society has announced the appointment of Evelyn J. Howerth of Fairborn as its new director.

Mrs. Howerth, who replaced Charlene Barber, began her duties as the director Nov. 1 with the establishment of new offices for the local chapter at 331 E. Court St.

Mrs. Howerth, wife of Thomas Howerth stationed at Wright Patterson AFB, has been director of the Greene County cancer society chapter for the past year. Born in Delray Beach, Fla., she graduated from the Good Samaritan Hospital school of nursing and was a public health nurse with the Brevard County Health Department in Cocoa, Fla., for five and half years.

The new Fayette County office is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. However, Ms. Howerth is hoping to open the office five days a week once she is settled. She stressed a need for volunteers to work in the office. The only qualification she said she is looking for is a willingness to help.

The Nov. 1 opening of the office marks the first time Fayette County has actually had an office. The 331 E. Court St. location is rented from the John Faris Insurance Agency. The local chapter was operating out of the previous director's home.

The American Cancer Society's Fayette County chapter has a number of services to offer cancer patients and their families, as well as community organizations interested in the disease. Films may be rented by themselves or as part of an education program with an accompanying speaker. The society's programs discuss various types of cancer, the effects of smoking or whatever a particular group may need, Ms. Howerth said.

The office also maintains a closet full of materials and equipment for loaning to cancer patients, such as wheelchairs, walkers and hospital beds at no charge to patients. Ms. Howerth said the chapter is equipped to help with dressings and keeps such supplies on hand. They have a financial aid program for the purchase of needed medication and offer a transportation service to hospitals and physicians' offices for area residents stricken with the disease.

The chapter can provide information about cancer and its treatment and provide counseling and referral services for families of cancer patients.

Mother of two, Ms. Howerth was program administrator for the Brevard County American Lung Association for six years. She was also employed as a social worker, supportive services area, senior nutritional aid program in Florida until her husband's transfer to Wright Patterson.

Area residents interested in volunteer work at the new American Cancer Society office should contact Ms. Howerth by dropping by or calling 335-3540.

Mental health clinic sets open house

In honor of its first anniversary, the Fayette County Mental Health Clinic is holding an open house Monday, Nov. 14, from 2 to 5 p.m. at its relatively new location, 324 E. Court St.

The open house is hosted by the citizens planning committee of the local "648" board, a satellite agency of the Scioto-Paint Valley Mental Health Center in Ross County. A "648" board is a mental health and mental retardation board established in local communities 10 years ago by Ohio House Bill 648.

The boards were charged by law with planning and funding community mental health services. The local mental health clinic began operation in November last year on a 20-hour per week basis working out of Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

At that time the clinic's staff consisted of a counselor, a nurse, a drug abuse counselor and a 4-hour-a-week psychiatric consultant. With requests for increased services and aid from the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, the local clinic opened its doors full-time, 40 hours a week, in July. On Sept. 1, the staff moved its base of operation to the E. Court Street location with hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The staff includes Jo Anne Fessler, director-counselor; Sandra Stevens, psychiatric nurse; Eric Jenkins, substance abuse counselor; Dr. Carl Beavers, a Cincinnati psychiatrist who works in the local clinic six hours per week; Cindy Evans, receptionist; and Terri Sholler, secretary.

The clinic offers three basic areas of service to the community: general mental health counseling and education; after hospitalization care; and substance abuse counseling.

Ms. Fessler conducts most of the counseling in a wide variety of areas including marriage, family relationships, children, personal problems and depression. She also supervises the daily operation of the program.

The "after-care" program aids persons recently released from institutions to cope with re-entering the community. Ms. Stevens and Dr. Beavers oversee this phase of the clinic's work. Many clients released from institutions are still on medication and require the help of psychiatric medical personnel.

Ms. Stevens also counsels clients and their families during the resocialization process. In addition, Dr. Beavers is a consultant to the clinic director.

The substance abuse program consists of counseling individuals and families with drug-related problems. Jenkins is also capable of conducting drug dependency evaluations when requested by the courts. His program also offers in-service training and specialized training for groups interested in recognizing and dealing with substance abuse.

Among the outpatient services offered, an outreach counselor from the Edgewood Children's Treatment Center is available 16 hours weekly.

Each of the staff members also interact with the community through ANNIVERSARY OPEN HOUSE — Staff members of the Fayette County Mental Health Clinic, 324 E. Court St., are holding an open house Monday, Nov. 14, from 2-5 p.m. to celebrate their first anniversary of providing services to the Washington C.H. area. Shown here are staff members (left to right): Director-Counselor Jo Anne Fessler; Substance Abuse Counselor Eric Jenkins; Secretary Terri Sholler; Psychiatric Nurse Sandra Stevens; and Receptionist Cindy Evans. Not shown is the clinic's consulting psychiatrist Dr. Carl Beavers of Cincinnati.

Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board serves Fayette County among four others. The board includes three members from each county, two appointed by county commissioners and one appointed by the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Fayette County members include Lois Goodson and William Still. The Paint Valley board's executive director is George Puchovich. The clinic's board members are Ott Reigel and Frank Stanley.

The Fayette County Mental Health Clinic is funded by three sources: the state, the county commissioners and fees paid for services. Those fees are based on the cost of services, but are charged according to a client's income and number of dependents. However, no one will be denied service because they lack the ability to pay.

The Ohio legislature passed House Bill 648 in 1967, establishing mental health and retardation boards. The

SCOL winds up 50th anniversary

Lions don't figure to pull off any miracles

By MARK REA

Record-Herald Sports Editor

The South Central Ohio League wraps up its 50th football season this week with three league games and non-league encounters.

For many pre-season forecasters (including this one), most of them can boast because Miami Trace, everyone's favorite to repeat as league champs, have done exactly that. All that remains is another gold football for the Panther trophy case just inside the front door.

For this prognosticator, the season didn't quite come out the way we predicted. Miami Trace and Madison Plains were the only teams we picked in their rightful spots — first and last, respectively.

We got close with Wilmington in third, Circleville in fourth and Teays Valley in sixth. But, our crystal ball was cloudy on Hillsboro's turnaround (we picked them last) and apparent crumbling of Greenfield McClain (picked by us as league runners-up) and Washington C.H.

The weekly predictions haven't been all that hot either. We were just 2-2 last week, bringing the season's total to 29-16-2, or 65 percent. Just to let you in on how we do this week, the best we can do for the season is 67 percent and that's only if we're 5-0 this week.

We hope to do a bit better when basketball rolls along later this month. This week's picks:

WASHINGTON C.H. AT MIAMI TRACE

This is the one everyone in Fayette County has been waiting for. The backyard brawl for the fabled county crown. The Panthers hold an 8-7-1 edge over the Lions in 16 prior meetings but they have won five of the last six times the two have met.

The Panthers have a tremendous wealth of talent beginning with quarterback Art Schlichter. The All-American, subject of yet another feature story in a Columbus newspaper yesterday, has thrown for over 1500 yards in just eight games this season.

Seniors Dennis Combs and David Cremer are potent breakaway threats out of the backfield while Bill Hanners and Shane Riley are definite long bomb threats. On the line, Trace features muscle with Glen Cobb, Shawn Riley, Dave Hennessy and company.

But, the Lions have talent also. Speedy running backs Larry Bruckles and Jeff Elliott are threats to score each time they touch the football. And, receiver Terry Wilson can always turn short passes into long gainers with his speed.

It's really hard to pick one county team over another even in a year when there is a clear-cut favorite. The Panthers have rolled over each and every opponent this season while the Lions are 4-5.

Miami Trace believes that the Lions, like everyone else, will be caught in a whirlpool of Panther touchdowns. The Lions, armed with their year-long slogan of "You Gotta Believe" think they can pull off the miracle of the year.

It looks to us like one more gold football one more time. We never were much for miracles ... Miami Trace 66, Washington C.H. 6.

CIRCLEVILLE AT HILLSBORO

Both teams were upset last week meaning this game will probably be a no-holds-barred affair. The Tigers were upended by Washington C.H., 14-7, while the Indians dropped a 14-10 decision to Teays Valley.

The Indians, candidates for most improved team, saw a shot at second place go up in smoke with last week's loss. Nevertheless, a third place finish would be terrific for a team that is used to being one of the league's doormats.

Circleville, on the other hand, has suffered in recent weeks. They got blown away by Miami Trace and then squeaked past Teays Valley before being upset last week. Despite an overall record of 4-5, they are 4-2 in SCOL play.

Both teams feature powerful running games. Hillsboro employs the services of SCOL-leading rusher Bruce Ford who gains almost 120 yards each game. Circleville's most prolific runner is Dave Marshall who is the 10th leading scorer in the league.

One difference that may make the game is the passing attack. While neither team does much through the air, the Indians at least have the threat while the Tigers seem to have nothing at all.

In a contest of two running teams, Circleville may go to the well too often with the run while the Indians show everyone they can put the ball in the air and have it come down in a teammate's hands ... Hillsboro 15, Circleville 12.

TEAYS VALLEY AT WILMINGTON

The Vikings are winding up a most successful first season in the SCOL with respectable showing against every team in the league. They are 4-5 overall but that is one more win than they have recorded in each of the prior two years.

Wilmington should use this game as a springboard into sole possession of second place (providing, of course, the prediction that comes before this one holds true).

Super athlete Gary Williams figures to have quite a night celebrating his final game on the Wilmington gridiron. The Hurricane fans have watched Williams since he was a freshman and they should see him at his best tomorrow night.

Neither team has much of a defense. The Vikings rank fourth in the league, giving up an average of 16 points a game. Wilmington ranks a lowly seventh, allowing over 20 points a game.

After a 52-10 defeat at the hands of Miami Trace, the Hurricane got their offense back in gear last week with a 50-6 win over Madison Plains. Even though it was against the 0-9 Eagles, we think that's still too much offense for the Vikings ... Wilmington 35, Teays Valley 16.

CINCINNATI TAFT AT GREENFIELD

McClain is very used to winning their final game of the year. Last season, nearly every senior of the team went wild with a rout of Frankfort Adena. This season, though, the seniors don't have much to celebrate playing Class AAA Cincinnati Taft.

Greenfield's been a hard team to figure this season. Picked by us to finish second in the league, they have lost to Circleville, Wilmington, Hillsboro and, who else, Miami Trace. Perhaps, without the injuries that they have absorbed, they could have been 3-1 with those four teams instead of 0-4.

Taft is one of the weaker Class AAA teams out of the Cincinnati area, a region dominated by Moeller, Bacon and Elder. In last week's computer poll, they were ranked 47th in Region 4 (the same region with the aforementioned teams and Miami Trace) with 24.875 points.

McClain was ranked 28th in Region 8 with 29.5 points from the Harbin computer. If you're like us, these computer ratings are tough to figure out, especially crossing from Class AAA to Class AA.

McClain's defense has sputtered for the past few weeks, scoring an average of just one touchdown in each of their last six games and dropping four of those contests. Taft will come to town and, chances are, leave it a winner ... Cincinnati Taft 18, Greenfield 6.

SPRINGBORO AT MADISON PLAINS

Well, friends, the plight of the Golden Eagles has almost ended. Madison Plains has lost 18 consecutive game over the past two years and now have an 8-41 record in the past five years.

The Eagles were poor last season with a 1-9 record, but they have slipped even further this season. They should finish the season at 0-10 with only 32 points scored and minus yards rushing for the season.

However, Eagles fans can give a vote of confidence to the sophomores and juniors who made up most of the team and hung in there against some of the stiffest competition in the state.

Just in case you're upset minded, Springboro ranks 29th in Region 8 of the computer. The Eagles are tied for 62nd — last place ... Springboro 33, Madison Plains 0.

Green Wave lone new leader

Trace can't crack computer top ten

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Only one new team, familiar face Newark Catholic, moved into regional leads Wednesday in the Ohio High School Athletic Association's computerized football ratings.

Newark Catholic replaced Beallsville as the pacesetter in Class A Region 11.

The OHSAA uses the ratings to select its postseason semifinal field in each class. The final listings will be released Monday after this weekend's regular season finales.

Newark Catholic is bidding for its fifth appearance in the six-year history of the playoffs. The Green Wave, however, has never won a state playoff crown.

Otherwise, the leaders were the same as last week with one minor exception: Fremont St. Joseph dropped out of a share of the Class A Region 10 lead with Hamler Henry. St. Joseph is second this week, only 1.50 of a point behind Henry.

In Class AAA, the frontrunners are Mentor Lake Catholic in Region 1, Sandusky in Region 2, Canton McKinley in Region 3 and defending champion Cincinnati Moeller in Region 4.

In Class AA, it's 1976 playoff king Elyria Catholic in Region 5, St. Marys in Region 6, Canton Central Catholic in Region 7 and Cincinnati Wyoming in Region 8.

In Class A, the other leaders are Ashtabula St. John's in Region 9 and West Jefferson, last year's playoff champion, in Region 12.

Celtics winner once in nine tries

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"If any of you guys don't feel like playing, you can pack your bags and get the hell out."

That was the gist of the message delivered by Boston Celtics president and General Manager Red Auerbach to his club in a closed-door meeting following Boston's 129-114 loss to the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday night, according to one of the players who sat through the tongue-lashing.

The loss, the Celtics' eighth in nine starts, ties them with New Jersey for the worst record in the National Basketball Association.

Coach Tommy Heinsohn, who huddled with Auerbach after the game, is ready to shake things up.

"I think you are going to see some surprises," Heinsohn said. "We've got to start making some major changes."

One move could involve more playing time for top draft choice Cornbread Maxwell at forward, where Curtis Rowe and Sidney Wicks have been inconsistent.

But according to Celtics center Dave Cowens, it's all a matter of intensity.

"We've got to start going on a suicide mission," he said. "We've got to get mad, start intimidating and playing harder. It was just embarrassing to be out on the court tonight."

San Antonio led 87-80 going into the final period, then buried the Celtics with a 42-point quarter.

In other NBA games, the Buffalo Braves beat the New York Knicks 124-113, the Philadelphia 76ers trounced the New Jersey Nets 130-107, the Detroit Pistons defeated the Houston Rockets 127-107, the Denver Nuggets edged the New Orleans Jazz 115-112 and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Indiana Pacers 132-129.

Braves 124, Knicks 113

Buffalo erased a five-point halftime deficit behind reserves Bill Willoughby and Jim McDaniels, who combined for 15 points in the second half.

Willoughby, playing only his fourth game of the season, hit three baskets in the last three minutes of the third quarter as the Braves went on a 12-6 spurt to go in front. Then McDaniels, a backup center averaging 14 minutes a game and shooting 22 per cent, scored five straight points at the start of the fourth quarter and sank all three of his shots.

Billy Knight led Buffalo with 30 points, 23 of them in the first half. Forward John Shumate added 26 and held former Brave Bob McDowell to 18 points for the Knicks.

76ers 130, Nets 107

Philadelphia remained unbeaten under new Coach Billy Cunningham, winning its third in a row as Julius Erving scored 19 points and Darryl Dawkins 16. The Nets' George Johnson led all scorers with 20 points, but 14 of them were in the first quarter.

The Sixers took the lead for good midway through the second period and built it to as much as 27 points in the fourth quarter.

"Philadelphia was awesome," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery. "We did not want to get into a running game with them. We wanted to slow down the tempo, but just could not manage it."

Pistons 127, Rockets 107

Chris Ford, who lost his starting job to Ralph Simpson, ending a string of 152 consecutive starts for the Detroit guard, came off the bench to score six points and spark a second period burst that carried the Pistons from a 35-32 deficit to a 51-43 lead. The Rockets never caught up.

"The pay is the same for me whether or not I start," said Ford.

Nuggets 115, Jazz 112

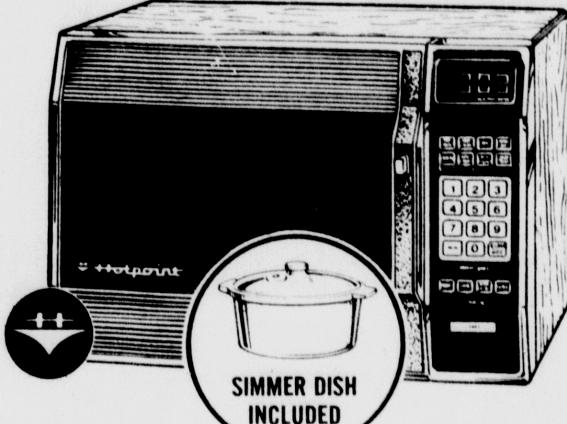

Denver outscored New Orleans 19-5 midway through the fourth quarter to open a 15-point lead and then held off a late surge by the Jazz. David Thompson scored 31 points and Dan Issel a season-high 26 for the Nuggets. Truck Robinson topped New Orleans with 24, but NBA scoring king Pete Maravich was limited to 10.

Warriors 132, Pacers 129

Rick Barry scored 39 of his 45 points in the second half for the Warriors, who snapped a three-game losing streak. He had four points in the final 1:30 to seal the victory and offset a 36-point effort by Indiana's Adrian Dantley.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Brigham Young quarterback Marc Wilson is so much like his injured predecessor Gifford Nielsen that listing differences between them amounts to hairsplitting.

Both have started four games this season for 13th-ranked BYU. Both are 6-foot-5 and 195, adept at other sports, devout Mormons, married to former cheerleaders, good students and want to play pro football.

Statistically it's more of the same. Before he was lost for the season with a knee injury, Nielsen led the nation in passing, completing 98 of 156 passes for 1,167 yards and 16 touchdowns.

Wilson has hit 92 of 155 passes for 1,515 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Last week against Utah, Wilson passed for five touchdowns and a National Collegiate Athletic Association single-game record of 571 yards.

That earned him The Associated Press Back of the Week honors for the second time this season. The first was in his initial start when he threw seven touchdown passes against Colorado State. Nielsen won the honor once.

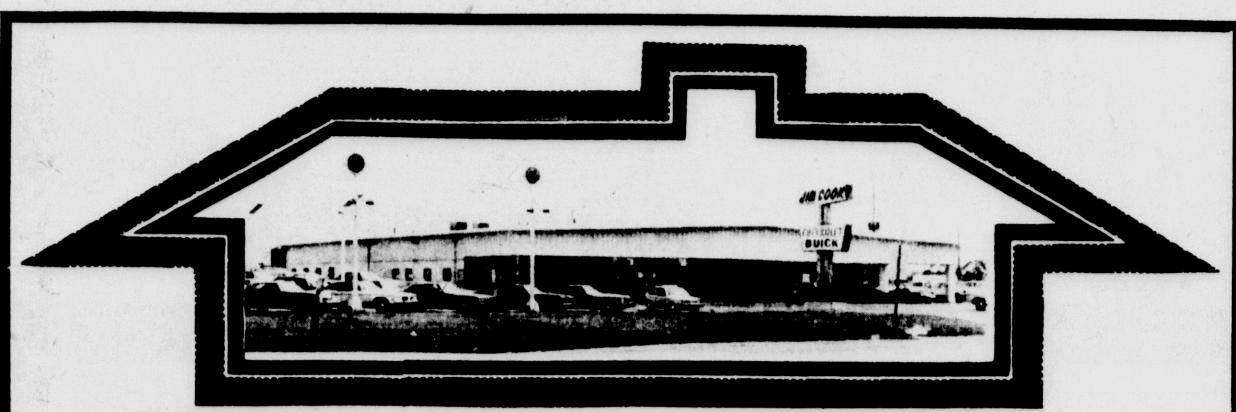

"They are the kind of kids, the old cliche goes, you would like to take home and have as your own son," said BYU Coach LaVell Edwards.

But there are differences between Nielsen, a senior from Provo, Utah, and Wilson, a sophomore from Seattle, Wash. A paragon of accuracy, Nielsen threw only three interceptions this year. Wilson has dished up 12, six in a long afternoon against Wyoming.

"Marc is a little quicker and stronger than Gifford," Edwards said. "I think Marc has a little stronger arm, but obviously he doesn't have the experience Gifford has."

Edwards said Wilson is the softer-spoken of the two. "He has worked on his confidence and leadership, and probably has had to work on them more than Gifford, who seems to have them as innate qualities."

Wilson agrees.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary War hero who was hanged as a spy, is the subject of the latest postal card in the "Patriots Postal Card" series issued by the U.S. Postal Service.

The 9-cent card is the seventh in the series which began with the issuance of the Paul Revere item in 1971. Subsequent cards have honored John Hanson, Samuel Adams, Charles Thomson, John Witherspoon and Caesar Rodney. Many collectors have started a separate section in their albums for this postal card series.

History tells us that Nathan Hale served during the siege of Boston and was commissioned a captain. He entered the British lines to gain military information and was captured Sept. 21, 1776. He was hanged as a spy the next day. His brave act earned him a special place in American history as a martyr.

The new card bears a vignette portrait of Hale with the inscription "Nathan Hale Patriot." Beneath the illustration is US Postage 9c.

Speaking of American Revolution patriots, the Flatbush Historical Society has petitioned the Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee for the issuance of a stamp in 1978 to honor and memorialize more than 11,000 "Prison Ship Martyrs" who chose to die rather than swear allegiance to the British Crown. These patriots were imprisoned on British ships anchored on the East River at Wallabout Bay, off the shores of Brooklyn. According to Irving Choban, president of the Flatbush Historical Society, more men died in the prison ships than in all the rest of the 13 colonies during the American Revolution.

This year Antigua celebrated the 21st anniversary of its annual Summer Carnival with the issuance of five new stamps and a souvenir sheet. At the exciting carnival, the local populace participates in fun and frivolity. There are steel bands, calypso singers, beauty pageants and food contests. The stamps depict highlights of the carnival.

The 10-cent shows a Carnival Queen holding a colorful horseshoe decoration. The 30-cent depicts a Carnival Queen with feather headdress. The 50-cent bears a butterfly costume. The 90-cent illustrates a Carnival Queen with a parade in the background. The one-dollar displays the Carnival King and Queen.

Christmas Island has issued a new stamp commemorating its discovery by Captain Cook in 1777. The island was discovered Dec. 24, but it was named Christmas Island by Cook because the entire crew of his two ships spent Christmas there. Cook was on his way to find a northwest passage from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic Ocean.

The 8-cent stamp shows H.M.S. Resolution and Discovery off Christmas Island. The 15-cent has a view of the island. The 20-cent illustrates Captain Cook viewing the island. The 40-cent depicts Cook landing on the island 200 years ago.

The Stanley Gibbons' catalogue "Stamps of the World" — which lists over 192,500 stamps and 40,500 illustrations — cites the most valuable stamp as the British Guiana one-cent black on magenta 1856 for more than a half-million dollars. The second most valuable is the Mauritius "Post Office" one-penny red of 1847 for $425,000.

Supplementary Heat Cuts Costs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Many people are seeking supplementary heat that will help cut the cost of their fuel bills, especially if they have a costly heating system.

The average wood-burning fireplace may throw little heat into a room, although some owners of well-insulated homes use their fireplaces more often than their major heating systems. But there are fireplace units that can recirculate heat into a room and these can provide considerable warmth. Then, too, fireplaces may be supplemented with wood stoves.

In her book, "The Wood Burning Stove," Gerri Harrington aims to provide information about heating and cooking alternatives.

Such stoves include heavy cast iron and plate steel box types that have become popular as emergency heat in the northeast and other areas where there have been power outages. Like generators, which small-home owners often acquire after a big storm, upkeep is needed so that the heating units are ready to provide service when it is necessary. But more and more people are considering such stoves as major heating sources.

Unless you have previous experience with wood-burning stoves you should not replace your central heating, cautions the author, who says, however, that heating and cooking bills can be cut enormously by using a wood-burning stove to supplement a regular heating system.

With wood there should be no worries about running out of fuel, she reassures. A never-ending supply of firewood is available in the forests and backyards of America. Man merely harnesses nature to take care of his needs, she says.

If it takes 141 gallons of oil to equal a cord of wood (as fuel potential) and if oil costs 40 cents a gallon, a person could afford to pay $56 for a cord of wood, the author states. In fact a cord of shag bark hickory will deliver as much heat as 251 gallons of fuel oil, she claims.

At downtown business

Smoke scare checked

Washington C.H. firefighters investigated a reported smoke scare at a W. Court Street business Wednesday. Smoke was filtering from the chimney of an incinerator in the basement of Watson's Office Supplies, 113½ W. Court St., around 5:40 p.m., according to fire department officials. The chimney is not vented properly, officials said, and holes in the attic portion of the chimney allow smoke to escape.

Fire Chief Maynard (Joe) Denen requested the store's personnel to discontinue use of the incinerator until the chimney has been repaired. No damage resulted from the incident. Firefighters also investigated a suspected gas leak Wednesday night at a Clinton Avenue residence.

Gilbert Yoho of 823 Clinton Ave. summoned firemen about 7:30 p.m. complaining of a gas odor in his home. Investigating firemen stated the smell of sewer gas was strong in the house. They reportedly covered the sewer drains and ventilated the house, which is owned by Jane Doyle, 612 Park Drive. No damage was reported.

Three other mishaps reported

Driver slightly hurt in rural crash

A Beech City man suffered minor injuries when he drove into a fence off Creek Road about half a mile north of Flakes Ford Road Wednesday.

Eugene D. Wright, 55, of Beech City, was slightly injured, but was not treated following the 6:10 p.m. accident.

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported Wright failed to negotiate a left curve in Creek Road and drove off the right side damaging three rod of fence. The man then backed away from the fence and left the scene.

Sheriff's deputies later located Wright and cited him for leaving the scene and driving while intoxicated.

Washington C.H. police officers reported a collision involving four cars on N. North Street just north of Gregg Street early Thursday.

According to the police report, John C. Dillon, 28, 429 Lewis St., was cited after he failed to stop behind traffic at the railroad crossing. He told investigators his car slid on wet pavement and rear ended one vehicle. The impact reportedly forced a chain reaction causing the other car to rear end a vehicle in front of it and that vehicle struck a third car in the rear.

The accident occurred about 1:57 this morning. Police officers said the driver at the front of the chain collision left the scene after checking his vehicle for damage. The other two vehicles, driven by Tony W. Redman, 21, 236 Belle Ave., and Charles E. Noel, 45, Rt. 4, both sustained minor damages. Dillon's car was moderately damaged. No injuries were reported.

Dillon was cited for failure to maintain an assured clear distance and driving while intoxicated.

The road construction vehicle, driven by Joel H. Walraven, 37, of Wilmington, was undamaged. Neither driver was injured.

In a minor accident reported by sheriff's deputies, a hitskip driver damaged a store front awning Wednesday at Sancy's Flower Shop in Jeffersonville.

According to the sheriff's department report, the vehicle was towing a camper trailer which struck the awning when the vehicle turned around in the parking lot about 5:20 p.m. The vehicle then left the scene.
